BEULAH COMMUNITY SUPPORTS THE ULURU STATEMENT FROM THE HEART

We gathered at the 2017 National Constitutional Convention, providing from all points of the continent this statement from the heart.

Our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander leaders have the First Nations Nations of the Australian continent with its ancient stories, and passed it on to our own, here and now.

This our ancestral, according to the returning of our nation, from the Creation, according to the common law that is supported, and according to culture more than 60,000 years ago.

This our rights in a spiritual nation, the ancestral to be our land, as 'mother nation' and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people who were here when we arrived, and we must now step across history to be united with our ancestors. This land is the heart of our nation, and we must now step across history to be united with our ancestors.

How could we not be united with our ancestors? In the heart of our nation, we must now step across history to be united with our ancestors.

How could we not be united with our ancestors? In the heart of our nation, we must now
step across history to be united with our ancestors.

How could we not be united with our ancestors? In the heart of our nation, we must now

The installation consists of 2 poles (recycled B150 Philanthropoles) linked by a canvas flag, and 6 poles from trees felled on the property. They are linked by barbed wire representing the role fences played in the Indigenous dispossession. Various settler artefacts, mostly from an old rubbish tip on the property, are attached to the fence. The poles have been painted by local Indigenous artists. They depict Indigenous culture both locally and in Indigenous nations where my family has historical connections. Flip the page to see art works.

Remember Kilcoy, one of the great mysteries of the Queensland frontier, where in February 1842 a large number of Aborigines were massacred on Kilcoy Station by shepherds using poisons. Come and explore this mystery with Brisbane historian, Frank Uhr and Kabi Kabi Traditional Owner, Melinda Serico. Learn how the deaths of so many led to organised resistance to white settlement by strong Tribal Alliances across South East Queensland; and how Melinda's family and others survived the massacre.

Everyone welcome. Morning tea will be served.

Dundalli and the frontier wars

Dundalli was a local Aboriginal resistance leader and an appointed lawman who fought to protect his people and country, writes AUDIENNE BLYTH

Born in 1820, he was 35 years old when he was captured, tried and hanged in Brisbane on January 5, 1855. Dundalli's was the last public hanging in Queensland.

Dundalli was a Dalla man from the Sunshine Coast hinterland and renowned for his large size and strength. The elders had given him the task of leading the resistance against the white settlers who were busily occupying traditional Aboriginal land.

Loyalty to his own people and his culture made him a hero to Aborigines and an enemy of white settlers who were in awe of his physical fitness and fighting ability and feared an attack. For 12 years he avoided capture until finally he was arrested and publicly hanged.

The Brisbane frontier wars or "black wars" lasted from 1824 until 1865.

Aborigines employed guerrilla-type tactics against the incursion of the white settlers who were able to call on Native Police. There were reprisals and counter-reprisals. Dundalli was blamed for many crimes against white settlers – spearing a shepherd at Durundur Station, an attack on the Pine River.

In particular he was blamed for the Artist Kim Spillies with the memorial to Dundalli at Lindsay Rd, Buderim (and right) The Remember the Frontier Wars poster.

murders of William Boller and Andrew Gregor. Much circumstantial evidence surrounded the case against Dundalli.

Pemulway, Mosquito, Windradayne, Yagin and Jandamarra have been famous resistance fighters in the history of Australia. Research by scholars into their struggles allows modern Australians to see their point of view and the clash between the two cultures.

A service of remembrance and lament conducted by Mother Moira Evers was held at St Mark's Anglican Church, Buderim on January 5, the anniversary of Dundalli's hanging.

Libby Connors author of Warrior: A Legendary Leader's Dramatic Life and Violent Death on the Colonial Frontier addressed the congregation. Alex Bond, a Kabi Kabi traditional owner also spoke.

The event was sponsored by the Beulah Community, a charity supporting volunteers to address local social justice issues. The service was followed by afternoon tea at the Greenhouse in Lindsay Rd and the opening of an installation to commemorate Dundalli in the Memorial Garden in Buderim Forest Reserve.

As you drive along Lindsay Road the eye-catching memorial can be seen on the roadside.

The event also included the rescreening of the recent speech on race issues by well-known Indigenous journalist Stan Grant, which has garnered much media attention

The film Wunya Ngulum, which is about sharing country and Indigenous heritage, was also launched. The film was produced locally and features local Indigenous talent. It was developed with the financial assistance of the Sunshine Coast Council and Buderim Anglican SAILS (a local social justice group that includes members of St Mark's).

St Mark's Reconciliation group, which facilitated the event, was very pleased with their first reconciliation event.

The event provided the opportunity for dialogue between Indigenous and non-Indigenous community members, involved parish members working collaboratively on a reconciliation event and engaged passers-by from the broader community.

Naming of Wayna Park 5th October

St Mark's Anglican Church Buderim with Buderim Sails have been removing weeds and planting natives in the escarpment rainforest remnant on church land opposite Buderim Primary School for some time. In this process a piece of Kanaka built wall in the adjoining council road reserve has been uncovered. This church land is going to be officially named Wanya Park for the local Indigenous people on Saturday 5th October.

There will be a gathering including local Indigenous and Islander people at St Mark's for lunch at 12noon followed by the naming ceremony at 2pm. The Gubbi Gubbi Dancers will be performing.

If you would like to attend or get further information contact Heather Johnston on 07 5453 4102 or heatherbj@gmail.com
